

Life

If you are born,

You surely must die,

Tho' the questions remain

Of the how and the when,

The where and the why.

Unanswerable, these,

Until after the fact.

The future, it seems,

In well-proven truth,

Keeps its secrets intact.

