

Parentheses

It demonstrates a limited understanding of the concepts of infinity and eternity

if one does not also acknowledge that everything which has ever been,

is now

and is yet to be conceived is fully possible.

I accept, intellectually, I think, the idea that time and space have no limits.

But it is difficult to comprehend an existence with no edges.

Human life, and in fact all life as my humanity allows me to know it, is quite effectively parenthesized by birth and death.

But if I accept the premise that a part of me, my consciousness, is God within me, and I am then a part of Him, does that not place me into eternity, infinity and outside of those earthly parentheses, and therefore outside as well of any limitations to possibilities?
